Norwegian – LinkedIn

- From Bodø in the Norwegian Arctic, I have worked with geopolitics, foreign affairs, maritime security, ocean governance and the Arctic, in Brussels, Oslo, Toronto, Vancouver and Washington DC.
- I hold a PhD in international relations from University of British Columbia (Canada) and a MSc from London School of Economics (UK).
- I am a Fulbright alumnus (2021-2023: fellow at Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center and at the Wilson Center's Polar Institute).
- Currently I am based in Oslo as a Senior Researcher at the Fridtjof Nansen Institute (one of Norway's leading international relations research institutes).
- In addition, I am a part-time Associate Professor the High North Center at Nord University Business School (Bodø) and at Oslo New University College. I am also affiliated with The Arctic Institute – a non-profit network organisation of young Arctic experts that I took part in establishing in 2011 – and the Wilson Center in Washington, DC.
- From 2010 to 2014, I worked in Brussels for the North Norway European Office. From 2014, I have been a full-time researcher.
- Beyond research of academic and public relevance, I have specialised in project development and management, public lecturing and linking academic results to policy-debates.
